PROJECTS

Expending Budget Tracking project

Expending Budget Tracking project is a Java-based application designed to help users keep track of their expenses and manage their finances effectively. The application allows users to record their daily expenses, categorize them, and generate useful reports for analysis. By implementing this project, users can gain better control over their spending habits and make informed financial decisions

Online shopping project in java and jsp

An online shopping project implemented in Java and JSP (JavaServer Pages) typically involves creating a web application that allows users to browse, select, and purchase products online
Front-End Development: JSP is used for creating the user interface, where users can view product listings, add items to their cart, and complete the checkout process.

Back-End Development: Java is employed to handle the server-side logic. This includes managing user accounts, maintaining product inventory, and processing transactions.

Database Integration: The project integrates with a database MySQL to store product information, user details, and order history.
